SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

General Considerations. Authors should present their material completely and clearly. Articles should be written in an accessible style to address a wide audience. Authors should be prepared for active correspondence with HHPR editors concerning revisions during the review process.

• Title of the paper
• Names, formal titles, affiliations, mailing addresses, phone and fax numbers, and email addresses for all authors
• Word count
• Date of submission

Author List. Include in the byline all those who have co-authored the paper. Use first names, initials, and surnames (e.g., John A. Smith). Please include relevant titles and academic degrees. Author names should only appear on the cover page. They should not appear in the abstract, first page of the text, or in headers or footers in the paper.

Word Count. The suggested length for an article is 1800 words.

Formatting. Text portions of the paper, excluding the cover page, should be single-spaced, with one-inch margins. Please limit text that is italicized, boldface, or underlined. All pages should be numbered with no other text in the header or footer area.

Abstracts. All pieces must contain a short abstract up to 150 words in length, which should briefly address the significant content of the paper.

References. Accuracy and completeness of references is the responsibility of the author(s). References should be cited as endnotes appearing as un-parenthesized superscript numbers at the end of the sentence. References must be formatted according to the Vancouver Style. References must be placed together as a single, comprehensive list in order of use within the text of the paper. The following sources offer additional information about the Vancouver endnote style:

Acknowledgements. Notes acknowledging assistance may be placed in an Acknowledgements section (2-3 sentences maximum).

Biography. All pieces must contain a brief author biography not to exceed 50 words for each author. The biography should be accompanied with a professional headshot of each author.

Exhibits. High quality versions of graphics, tables and figures should be provided in the file format in which they were originally created. The placement of the exhibits should be clearly indicated in the flow of the text. Exhibits should be titled and include notes indicating the source(s) for the data presented. If the work in the exhibit is not original and has been published, copyright permission from the publisher is needed.

Photos. All submissions should be accompanied with at least one high resolution (300ppi), digital color photograph related to the article. All pictures must be attached separately to the email and must be in JPEG format.

Proofs. Page proofs will be provided in Adobe PDF format and sent directly to the corresponding author near the end of the reviewing process. A timely author’s approval must be made in order for the article to be published in the current issue. If changes are requested, authors must clearly identify all corrections, revisions, and additions. Separate graphics must be provided for all revised exhibits. Changes are subject to editorial review.

Printed Journals. All authors will receive a copy of the journal at the address provided upon submission. Additional copies may be requested at $10 per copy.
